2010 EXPENSES

We take very seriously our obligation to be responsible stewards of the financial resources in our care. We keep a close eye on expenses but believe that, just as sophisticated investors are willing to pay reasonable management fees to ensure their portfolios deliver the highest returns, we must invest in good management to ensure our investment in the community delivers the maximum benefit. This includes a staff with significant experience and expertise in health and health care, philanthropy, financial and investment management, medical education and communication. It also includes consultants who help us leverage our staff and add to our expertise, along with office space and other administrative expenses to ensure smooth and efficient operations.
